IDL SOLUTIONS WINS 10-YEAR $2.5B FDA CONTRACT

Vienna, VA, October 7, 2008 – IDL Solutions, Inc., announced today that it has won a $2.5 billion contract award with the US Department of Health and Human Services, Food and Drug Administration (FDA) in a joint venture with Pragmatics, Inc. Under the highly sought after 10-year Information & Computing Technologies for the 21st Century (ICT-21) contract, the IDL-Pragmatics team can provide a broad range of IT infrastructure support services and deliver best-of-breed solutions for an operating infrastructure that supports a diverse set of information support and services at FDA.

IDL Solutions is the lead partner of a joint venture between IDL Solutions and Pragmatics, Inc. known as IDL-Pragmatics Innovation Partners JV, which led the team of 13 companies to win the ICT-21 contract. The IDL-Pragmatics team included subcontractors Vangent Inc., INDUS Corporation, TechTeam Government Solutions, Inc., Z-Tech/an ICF International Company, Digicon Corporation, HCI Action Architectural Consultants, The Stellar Corporation, World Wide Technology Inc., QWEST Government Services, Inc., and TestPros Inc. The IDL-Pragmatics team also included a large government systems integrator.

The much anticipated FDA ICT-21 contract was a highly sought after and competitive procurement among the Health IT industry. FDA made awards in two categories –large business and small business. IDL-Pragmatics was one of ten contract awardees.

“We are very pleased to be part of FDA’s move towards a modern 21st century infrastructure, and most importantly, we are honored to support FDA’s mission,” said IDL President and CEO, Baly Ambegaoker.
